

The information appearing in Las Primeras Abogadas - Una Historia is the research of Denver lawyer Dolores S. Atencio. Professor Atencio is the Scholar in Residence for the Colorado Women's College - University of Denver, Community Based Research Program, where she and her students are completing research on the 50 first Latina lawyers. Started in 1993 at the request of former HNBA President Mary Hernandez, her initial research was presented as a slide show at the HNBA San Francisco Convention. With funding from Loyola Law School, this slide show presentation was converted to a 60-minute documentary, Las Primeras (1994). Thanks to the Colorado Women's College for making the completion of this research project possible, especially Dean Lynn Gangone, Associate Dean Mary Ann Villarreal, Professor Tiffani Lennon and Dean Emeritus Mary Ricketson, as well as the following students: Reyna Alaniz, Gabriela Jacobo, Lorena Martinez Burch, Iris Rodriguez, Barbara Pena, Simone Richardson and Sheena Orban. Special acknowledgment to Encino, California lawyer and Primera in her own right - Selma Moidel Smith - for her research on Latina lawyers and guidance throughout this project; and to Macarena Tamayo-Calabrese, Executive Director, National Association of Women Lawyers.*
